HONORING JOSEPH JEFFERSON "SHOELESS JOE" JACKSON FOR HIS OUTSTANDING BASEBALL ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 289, which was submitted early today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 289) expressing the sense of the Senate that Joseph Jefferson "Shoeless Joe" Jackson should be appropriately honored for his outstanding baseball accomplishments.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask that the Senate now proceed to a voice vote on adoption of the resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate?

The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution (S. Res. 289) was agreed to.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the preamble be agreed to and the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 289

Whereas Joseph Jefferson "Shoeless Joe" Jackson, a native of Greenville, South Carolina, and a local legend, began his professional career and received his nickname while playing baseball for the Greenville Spinners in 1908;

Whereas "Shoeless Joe" Jackson moved to the Philadelphia Athletics for his major league debut in 1908, to the Cleveland Naps in 1910, and to the Chicago White Sox in 1915;

Whereas "Shoeless Joe" Jackson's accomplishments throughout his 13-year career in professional baseball were outstanding—he was 1 of only 7 Major League Baseball players to ever top the coveted mark of a .400 batting average for a season, and he earned a lifetime batting average of .356, the third highest of all time;

Whereas "Shoeless Joe" Jackson's career record makes him one of our Nation's top baseball players of all time;

Whereas in 1919, the infamous "Black Sox" scandal erupted when an employee of a New York gambler allegedly bribed 8 players of the Chicago White Sox, including Joseph Jefferson "Shoeless Joe" Jackson, to lose the first and second games of the 1919 World Series to the Cincinnati Reds;

Whereas in September 1920, a criminal court acquitted "Shoeless Joe" Jackson of the charge that he conspired to lose the 1919 World Series;

Whereas despite the acquittal, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's first commissioner, banned "Shoeless Joe" Jackson from playing Major League Baseball for life without conducting any investigation of Jackson's alleged activities, issuing a summary punishment that fell far short of due process standards;

Whereas the evidence shows that Jackson did not deliberately misplay during the 1919 World Series in an attempt to make his team lose the World Series;

Whereas during the 1919 World Series, Jackson's play was outstanding—his batting average was .375 (the highest of any player from either team), he set a World Series record with 12 hits, he committed no errors, and he hit the only home run of the series;

Whereas because of his lifetime ban from Major League Baseball, "Shoeless Joe" Jackson has been excluded from consideration for admission to the Major League Baseball Hall of Fame;

Whereas "Shoeless Joe" Jackson died in 1951, after fully serving his lifetime ban from baseball, and 85 years have elapsed since the 1919 World Series scandal erupted;

Whereas Major League Baseball Commissioner Bud Selig took an important first step toward restoring the reputation of "Shoeless Joe" Jackson by agreeing to investigate whether he was involved in a conspiracy to alter the outcome of the 1919 World Series and whether he should be eligible for inclusion in the Major League Baseball Hall of Fame;

Whereas it has been 6 years since Commissioner Selig initiated his investigation of "Shoeless Joe", but there has been no resolution;

Whereas the Chicago White Sox are the 2005 American League Champions, and will compete in the World Series for the first time since 1959;

Whereas "Shoeless Joe" Jackson helped lead the Chicago White Sox to their last World Series Championship in 1917; and

Whereas it is appropriate for Major League Baseball to remove the taint upon the memory of "Shoeless Joe" Jackson and honor his outstanding baseball accomplishments: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that Joseph Jefferson "Shoeless Joe" Jackson should be appropriately honored for his outstanding baseball accomplishments.

HONORING THE LIFE OF EDWARD ROYBAL

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 290, submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 290) honoring the life and expressing the deepest condolences of Congress on the passing of Edward Roybal, former United States Congressman.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to a trailblazing American and former Member of Congress, the Honorable Edward R. Roybal. It is an honor to speak about this incredible man, who on Monday passed away at the age of 89 and was an inspiration to me and to millions of Hispanics across our Nation.

First, I must offer my heartfelt condolences to the Honorable Roybal's wife, Lucile; his daughter, Congresswoman LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD, who is in her seventh term representing California's 34th District; his other daughter, Lillian Roybal-Rose; and his son, Edward R. Roybal, Jr.

When elected to the House of Representatives in 1962, Congressman Roybal became the first Hispanic to serve in Congress in nearly 100 years.

He represented the people of California's 30th Congressional District and served on behalf of the public interest during a very difficult and tumultuous time in our Nation's history.

As a 5th generation product of rural Colorado, my childhood at Los Rincones, my family's ranch in the San Luis Valley, was a far cry from Congressman Roybal's on the streets of East Los Angeles.

Our family's house was small—in fact, my five of the eight siblings shared a small room and two beds. We did not have running water or electricity until 1981.

However, even though we did not have electricity, I, like many other Latinos across this Nation, knew who the Honorable Ed Roybal was.

It was people like Congressman Roybal, and Cesar Chavez who inspired me to dream of serving our country as Colorado's Attorney General and later here in the United States Senate.

As a Hispanic American, he provided a shining example of just what I could accomplish if I heeded my parent's advice to get my education and work hard in all my endeavors. Today, as I speak as one of 100 in the Senate, I firmly believe that I am standing on the shoulders of many giants, in particular, Congressman Roybal.

Congressman Roybal lived by the fundamental values that make this country the greatest country in the world and the place I am privileged to call home. He fought social injustice on the streets, in our classrooms, and in the halls of Congress.

Like my parents, he was a part of the American generation who grew up during the Great Depression and came of age during World War II. He served our country in the U.S. Army and defended our rights and privileges afforded under the Constitution in battle. I am certain that this experience served him well when he served on the House's Veteran Affairs Committee.

Throughout his life, he gave voice to the disenfranchised and offered hope to
